NEW QUESTION: 1

Which CVSSv3 Attack Vector metric value requires the attacker to physically touch or manipulate the vulnerable component?

- A. physical
- B. local
- C. network
- D. adjacent

Answer: A

Explanation:

Explanation

Attack Vector (AV): This metric reflects the context by which vulnerability exploitation is possible. This metric value and the base score will correlate with an attacker's proximity to a vulnerable component.

The score will be higher the more remote (logically and physically) an attacker is from the vulnerable component.

Local: Exploiting the vulnerability requires either physical access to the target or a local (shell) account on the target.

Adjacent: Exploiting the vulnerability requires access to the local network of the target, and cannot be performed across an OSI Layer 3 boundary.

Network: The vulnerability is exploitable from remote networks. Such a vulnerability is often termed

"remotely exploitable," and can be thought of as an attack being exploitable one or more network hops away, such as across Layer 3 boundaries from routers.

Physical: A vulnerability exploitable with physical access requires the attacker to physically touch or manipulate the vulnerable component.
