- A. on the computer and on HP service blog posts
- B. in the service manual and on HP service blog posts
- C. in the service manual only because it is the only accepted source for accurate knowledge
- D. on the computer and on any replacement parts

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION: 4

The vice president of human resources has requested an audit to identify payroll overpayments for the previous year. Which would be the BEST audit technique to use in this situation? A) Test data

- A. Generalized audit software
- B. Embedded audit module
- C. Integrated test facility

Answer: C

Explanation:

Generalized audit software features include mathematical computations, stratification, statistical analysis, sequence checking, duplicate checking and recomputations . An IS auditor, using generalized audit software, could design appropriate tests to recompute the payroll, thereby determining if there were overpayments and to whom they were made. Test data would test for the existence of controls that might prevent overpayments, but it would not detect specific, previous miscalculations. Neither an integrated test facility nor an embedded audit module would detect errors for a previous period.
